Monitoring GLP-1 Drug Utilization

Spending on GLP-1 drugs is climbing, affecting both your diabetic and non-diabetic employees. As this trend continues, it's important to look beyond the cost and understand the broader impact on your health plan.

So What?

Increased utilization of GLP-1 drugs might indicate a need to review how these medications are being used within your plan. Are your employees receiving these prescriptions based on medical necessity, or could there be misuse that's unnecessarily driving up costs?

Now What?

By using InnovuLens, you can gain insights into the specifics of each claim, allowing you to assess whether these medications are being prescribed appropriately based on medical history. This level of detail helps you ensure that your health plan is being managed effectively, balancing cost control with the well-being of your employees.
